

The Duplets - Green Man Café - After Hours

The harpist theme continued after hours up on the hill as the Scottish folk act The Duplets bring a stunning array of jigs and Gaelic folk tunes to those dedicated fans of live music gathered at 1am. Fraya Thomsen and Gillian Fleetwood are easy to love combining lush vocals with duelling harps and a wicked sense of humour that both gleefully impart on those gathered. They play a wondrous array of heartfelt tunes including 'Tree of Strings' and 'Chloe's Passion' all of which draw warm applause from an audience that simply does not know when to stop needing live music. Both girls seem charmed by the cheering crowd and certain males in the crowd seem more than charmed by the girls. Scotland seems to have an abundance of musical talent at this festival and The Duplets shine as much as any other on the bill.
